giate education. Each scholarship was to continue for five years, $250 being paid to the school in each of the five years. The award of these scholarships was determined by the result of the examination for admission to the College of the City of New York but the successiul competitors were privi leged to select a course in Barvard, Yale, Co lumtia, Princeton or Cornell. Mr. Pulitzer gave more than a year's tria to the first experiment and he was so well satisfied with the work of the scholars tha he renewed his offer of twelve scholarships in 1891 and again in 1892. The conditions of the scholarships are as follows:

The Pulitzer Public School School scholarship shall be open to competition on the part of any boyin good bodily lead the who shall have been a popul of the public schools of the city of New York for the three years immediately preceding the examinawho shall present to the Committee on Award a certificate from the principal of his school stating that the applicant has been faithful, studious and orderly in the performance of his duties, and is, as far as the knowledge and information of the principal extend, in such needy circumstances that he oud not enter college without such assistance.

As a reward of merited success and as a reminder of the high responsibility reating upon the holder of a sebolarship thus obtained, the name of each ccessful applicant shall be given in a published report to be made by the Committee on Award, to-gether with the total number of applicants for the scholarships.

The acholarships shall be held subject to the supervision of the Committee on Award, and any holder of a senciarship shall forfeit his right to the same if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the committee that he has not been sufficiently orderly collegiate duties, and some of the Pulitzer Mrs. Bernard Beere, " England's Tosca," as scholars are to be found in the front rank of

she is usually called, has a strange fancy for their classes. At the last commencement of mechanical toys, dancing dolls and money the city college two prize medals were boxes. A horseshoe which she picked up awarded to one of these scholars. There were no less than sixty-three competitors for the twelve scholarships of 1892, and many of them passed most creditably at the examination for admission to the city college. The records of the examination showed that the competitors generally were fully qualified to pursue a collegiate course The Committee on Award is composed of John Jasper, City Superintendent of Schools; William H. Merrill and James Godwin, Assistant Superintendent of Schools. These centlemen, after a very careful consideration of the merits of the several candidates awarded the twelve scholarships to the fol-
